

SECTIONAL GARAGE DOORS

The Lotex range of quality sectional garage doors will finish and compliment your home and building investments.

LOTEX
GARAGE DOORS

Lotex sectional steel garage doors are a stylish alternative to the traditional timber garage door. Our doors are designed to suit both modern and conventional homes, offering superior levels of performance, safety and minimal maintenance requirements. With a choice of many colours, the wood-grain striped pattern will suit any home while enhancing both it's value and appeal.

TECHNICAL SPECIFICATIONS

Our doors feature 40mm thick sections (double sided) with triple layer construction, a continuous thermal break, air seals between sections and polyurethane insulations (foam filled) filling 100% of the doors inner space

All our door sections are produced from hot dipped 0.35mm galvanised steel and coated with a baked on, fade resistant, high grade polyester coating for maximum durability, rust resistance and colour retention

The front face of the doors are available in the standard and premium colours whilst the back face of the door is finished in a white-grain striped pattern.

PREMIUM COLOUR RANGE

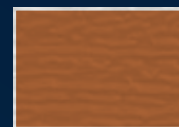

In line with design trends, Lotex has now introduced its premium colour range of sectional steel garage doors. Design experts have shown that the colour and overall design of your garage door can either enhance or ruin your home's aesthetics. Homeowners are extending accent colours, designs and shapes from their houses to the garage. Window trims, shutters and the front door are common reference points to be considered when finding the most suitable colour and design of their garage doors.
